

KOBOLD ENGLISH LAGER BOTTLES

Through sales of Kobold, Adnams is supporting Blue Marine Foundation (BLUE) to try and establish a national Marine Park in East Anglia, working together to connect people to, and protect wildlife in, our seas. This work is part of BLUE’S wider vision for a network of national marine parks in British seas. Marine Parks could boost tourism, sustainable fishing, public health, and economic recovery. They could change how people view the ocean. Adnams is also supporting BLUE in ensuring that offshore marine reserves are receiving the protection they deserve. Protecting offshore areas, using properly enforced marine reserves, will ensure that habitats for animals such as minke whale, harbour porpoise and seabirds are protected from destructive fishing, allowing these species to thrive.

Kobold is a great all-rounder, as well as a real showcase for English barley and hops. Its recipe keeps things clean and simple – much like its taste. With simplicity comes versatility, so open on any occasion were a crisp, cold beer is the order of the day. It’s perfect for reviving a food-weary palate or simply slaking a thirst. Named after the water spirit of legend that protects sailors on the North Sea, Kobold is a premium English lager with a refreshing taste and sustainability mission to match. Inspired by its namesake, sales of Kobold support marine conservation projects through a partnership with the Blue Marine Foundation. Together, we can help protect our seas, coastlines, and planet for everyone to enjoy.
